Brooklyn or Philadelphia? Which Will Crack First? Aye, There's the Rub!

American League in the world's series, and a very good representation it will make, no doubt. The National League race continues almost as indefinite as at the beginning of the season. There is a big possibility that the ultimate contender may not be decided until the

In one thing fandom may rest seure, however: The very best club of the Tener circuit is bound to meet the class of the Johnson ring. If ever sheer merit decides a title, that same will hold true this year in the National League. Friendships and hatred will be three. cast aside in personal pride and ambition. The ultimate victor need look only unto itself for help. The issue will be fought out coldly, without sentiment and without bias, to the very last inning.

The beginning of the final series of the year finds the Brooklyn Dodgers and the champion Phillies in a practical tie for the lead. There is little to choose between the respective chances of these two clubs, which have kept the greatest public attention from the start of the campaign. The Boston Braves, one of the very gamest clubs of the circuit, have still a mathematical chance to beat out the Dodgers and the Quakers. The hope is a small one, yet it exists, nevertheless. yet it exists, nevertheless.

Boston Will Fight.

Boston intends to fight every game with the Phillies to the bitter end. There are six of these battles to be decided within four days. Brooklyn has four games across the same span of time with McGraw's Giants. Provided Brooklyn can break even with a club that has just taken twenty-six of its last twenty-seven games—a club that won twenty-six times in a row—the National League champions will have to stop the Braves in four of the six games that remain between them.

Of the two tasks, ordinarily, that which confronts the Dodgers might be considered the more oncrous. Stallings's team has been sadly riddled through sickness and injury. It has stuck in the fight through never alone. The club showed visible signs of the strain throughout its recent stand at

The club showed visible signs of the strain throughout its recent stand at the Polo grounds. It seemed pitched out. And the pitching staff was Stalings's main claim to merit. Boston is a club that (pitching aside) does not begin to compare to the league champions when Moran can put his full strength in the field.

Bancroft Is Hurt.

But there is a great doubt that Moran will be able to send his very best against a club that is always dangerous against the best. Bancroft, one of the main cogs of Pat Moran's inner works, is supposed to have sprung a charley horse or pulled a tendon in Saturday's second game at Brooklyn. If this sterling performer cannot play against the Braves the whole cast is likely to suffer as a result. Bancroft s to the Phillies as much as is Maran ville to the Braves. When the Rabbit was out a while back Boston floundered around, absolutely at sea against sec-

A Philadelphia line-up minus Bancroft should be quite as hard put by the Braves as the Dodgers will be by elightly. It is now shead half a game.

If the rest of the season should be rained out Brooklyn would win. Brooklyn has no double-headers. Philadelphia has at least two in four days.
Rain to-day would frame three in as Rain to-day would frame three in as many days. One familiar with base-ball appreciates how much more diffi-cult it is to win two contests one afternoon than the same number spread over

As Newton Dopes It.

There is one other consideration to be remembered. Sir Isaac Newton propounded that undeniable theory that for every action there is a contrary equal reaction. Now, if this holds true in baseball, the Giants of the current week are not likely to be anywhere near the Giants of the month past. Through their record run of twenty-six straight the Giants were unbeatable. When the blow fell, along toward the middle of the second game at the able. When the blow fell, along toward the middle of the second game at the Folo Grounds Saturday afternoon, it was apparent to every observer that something snapped in this highly-keyed aggregation. For the first time McGraw's club gave evidence of "rattles." When Boston broke New York's winning streak it furnished the best possible boost for Brooklyn. The only hope of the Dodgers lies in the possibility of a reaction to New York's game, unless, indeed, the loss of Bancroft sadly demoralized the champions.

Expects Hard Fight.

Wilbert Robinson, the leader of the Dodgers, expects his hardest fight of the year within the next four days. But Miss 1 he hopes for no worse than an even split with McGraw. He does not believe that Philadelphia can do better than brenk even with the Braves.

"McGraw and Stallings are both sing to fight like fiends the rest of the sy," said Robinson last night. "There way, said Robinson last night. "There day. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 7-5. However, with Lindley Dunham, Mathe two, and third position is the stake. However, with Lindley Dunham, Mathe two, and third position is the stake. However, with Lindley Dunham, Mathe they won in straight sets from George Both of these managers are mighty hard losers. Each is anxious to beat 6-4.

Bottom Is Out of National League

You have to hand it to the Old Master, Matty. He has performed one miracle at least. He has taken the bottom out of the cellar in the National League. There is no last place there this year, for the Reds and the Cardinals are, mathematically and morally, tied for seventh Cincinnati was behind when the sun rose yesterday morning, but the Reds rallied under Matty and took two games from the Cardinals, hauling themselves out of the cellar by their bootstraps. Matty, with the Giants, was in the cellar last year, and he swore that he would never repose there again. The fact that the Reds are not absolutely buried should comfort Bill Phelon and other patriotic Cincinnati fans.

We will afford everybody concerned the treatment we would expect Let the best club win. We still have a hunch we are the best. But this you may know: If we happen to be put out of the race we will go down with colors flying and we will fight just as hard for justice and fairness, if any games remain after the knockout lands, as we would fight if we faced the Red Sox in the red letter event."

After Third Place.

"I gave Robbie his chance," said McGraw yesterday, "when I stopped the Phillies for him. He'll have to look to himself now. I'm out to beat the Braves for third position, and I think I can do it. Those who think my club will crack after its defeat will be sadly mistaken. I could not notice a bit of strain on my players Saturday afternoon. The Giants will save the show place, never fear."

Stallings and his Braves left for Phillsdelphia yesterday afternoon. The Big Chief had not given up the ship. "We have a mathematical chance," said Stallings, "and intend to improve it in the expense of the champions, We were able to beat Moran when he had his best line-up, and with Bancroft out we should make a clean sweep of the series. I look for McGraw to take the measure of Brookly." Maybe we can still squeeze through.
